

03_Product Performance

Purpose

The Product Performance page evaluates category-level performance across revenue generation, order volume, and sales concentration. It helps identify the most valuable product categories and understand how revenue is distributed across the product portfolio.

Key Business Questions

- Which product categories generate the highest revenue?
- Which product categories receive the highest order volume?
- How is revenue distributed across product categories?
- Are sales concentrated among a few categories or spread evenly across the portfolio?
- Which categories contribute most to overall business performance?

Key Insights

- Health & Beauty generated the highest revenue among all product categories.
- Watches & Gifts and Bed Bath Table were also major revenue contributors.
- Bed Bath Table recorded the highest order volume, indicating strong customer demand.
- The top five categories contribute a significant share of total revenue.
- Revenue is concentrated among a relatively small number of categories, while many categories contribute only a minor share of sales.
- Category performance varies considerably, highlighting opportunities for category-specific business strategies.

Business Value

This page helps stakeholders identify top-performing categories, optimize product portfolio decisions, prioritize inventory investments, and focus marketing efforts on categories that drive the greatest business value.

Understanding category performance also supports strategic decisions around expansion, promotion, and resource allocation.